-- FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE --

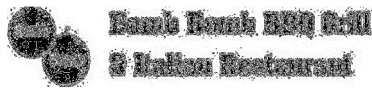

Calling All Meatball Lovers!
The American Swedish Historical Museum and the South Philly Review Present
The Great Meatball Match Up
Sunday, October 24th, 4-6pm
See Which Meatball Makes It to the Top of the Heap!

Meatballs are a popular treat in many different cultures and are common in the cuisines of over a dozen nations, including Sweden. As part of ASHM's current exhibit on Swedish food, Go Swedish!, we are hosting a Meatball Contest on October 24, 2010. We are inviting members of the public, as well as local restaurants, to serve up their potentially prize winning meatballs at the contest.

Attendees and local contestants will be able to taste and vote for the best Restaurant meatball, and our professional contestants will judge the Amateurs' entries. So come and see whose meatballs are the greatest of them all. Fun and deliciousness is guaranteed!

Participating restaurants include:

Villa di
Roma.

Nam Phuong
RESTAURANT

P&S Ravioli Company

Admission is $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and students, and children under 12 are free. Bread will be served along with the meatballs, and beverages will be available for purchase.

The American Swedish Historical Museum is located in scenic FDR Park at 1900 Pattison Avenue in South Philadelphia near the Sports Complex. Plenty of free parking is available. For those taking public transportation, the Broad Street Subway's Pattison Avenue stop is within walking distance, or SEPTA's Route 17 (Naval Base) can bring you right to the Museum.
