The Mighty Meatball: Which one will reign supreme?
The 5th Edition of the Great Meatball Match Up
A Competition for Amateur and Professional Chefs
Presented by the American Swedish Historical Museum and the South Philly Review
Sunday, October 18th, 2015 4pm-6pm

Philadelphia, PA- Meatballs are a satisfying, feel-good menu item in many different cultures and are common in the cuisines of over a dozen nations, including Sweden. Join ASHM and the South Philly Review for our fifth installment of the Great Meatball Match Up on October 18, 2015. We are inviting members of the public, as well as local restaurants, to serve up their potentially prize winning meatballs.

Attendees and local contestants will be able to taste and vote for the Best Professional meatball, and a special panel of judges will choose the best amongst the Amateurs' entries. This year's judges include local food blogger Jamie Shanker of MidTown Lunch, as well as ASHM's new Swedish cooking class instructor, Katherine Dahlsgaard. So come and see whose meatballs are the greatest of them all. Fun and deliciousness is guaranteed! For information on how to become a contestant, check our website, www.americanswedish.org or call (215) 389-1776.

Participating businesses include:

Admission is $8 for adults, $6 for seniors and students, and $4 for ages 4-12, children under 4 are free. Bread will be served, courtesy of Cacia's Bakery, along with the meatballs, and beverages will be available for purchase.

The American Swedish Historical Museum is located in scenic FDR Park at 1900 Pattison Avenue in South Philadelphia near the Sports Complex. Plenty of free parking is available. For those taking public transportation, the Broad Street Subway's AT&T/Pattison Avenue stop is within walking distance, or SEPTA's Route 17 (Naval Base) can bring you right to the Museum.
